Mpumalanga – meaning ‘place where the sun rises’ – is one of the most beautiful regions in South Africa. Its roads wind through majestic terrain and its awe-inspiring waterfalls and misty highlands will astound you. The heart of the highland region is Dullstroom. Here small town charm meets big town soul.

Dullstroom is 2100m above sea level and is often covered by a blanket of mist. It’s also one of the coldest villages in South Africa, but with fireplaces in pubs, restaurants and shops, it’s the perfect place to enjoy a glass of red wine after a day of adventure, fishing or horse riding. The wide range of restaurants will satisfy just about everyone – from pub grub to gourmet pancakes and everything in between.
